

Welcome to My Bookshelf!

How appropriate that her role is Director of Boundless at Focus on the Family because Lisa Anderson is “all that” in every measure—boundless in enthusiasm for this ministry to young adults as well as in so many other aspects of her full life.

A reader (as evidenced by the pix she generously shared upon request), Lisa is also an author (The Dating Manifesto) and contributor of two of the most favorite recipes in our AAA Family Cookbook (!).

While some may not want you to know that the shelves of their personal library are a jumble of random, unread books, true to her transparency in all things, Lisa “tells it like it is” ... just look!

BOUNDLESS INDEED!

Lisa Anderson

“ My main bookshelf at home is complete chaos right now because — as an aspiring minimalist — I will read most of these books and then pass them along to others.

The categories run the gamut from leadership to self-help to theology (thanks to Crossway for making me look uber-spiritual) to gothic romance and mystery to memoir. My latest book purchase is a history of my alma mater, Trinity International University.

On Christmas Day, my neighbor went to be with Jesus at 97 years young. She bequeathed to me her entire collection of Jan Karon “Mitford” novels. I haven’t started them yet, but my mom read the whole series, so on the recommendation of these two ladies I will tackle those as well.

I’ve set up my Goodreads app this year to track my progress because (#truth): Social media and Netflix have cannibalized my reading time. Ten books completed so far this year, which is already behind on my annual goal. But I persevere! ”
