The Blessing of Humility (Jerry Bridges)

A beautiful look at the Beattitudes as a way to approach humility.

The Book Woman of Troublesome Creek (Kim Michele Richardson)

Spoiler: There are blue people.

David and Goliath (Malcolm Gladwell)

I enjoy a new take on a familiar tale. He knows how to carefully weave a thread through multiple stories.

Educated (Tara Westover)

Impressively-written autobiographical narrative nonfiction. Could not put it down.

Emma (Jane Austen)

“In a world where one’s town was one’s world, there lived a woman...” The wit and humor is so clever and charming.

The Freedom of Self-Forgetfulness (Tim Keller)

A short and no so sweet kick in the pants. I come back to it at least annually.

A Gentleman in Moscow (Amor Towles)

Russian history made easy. Stick with it and you’ll be richly rewarded.

The Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society (Annie Barrows, Mary Ann Shaffer)

I equally loved the book and audiobook. I love historical fiction where I equally learn and am entertained.

Mere Christianity (C.S. Lewis)

I love reading this book both as a history book through the lens of WWII radio listeners and for personal instruction.

Waiting on God (Andrew Murray)

My first but not last book by whom I call “Great Uncle Andrew.” There’s no preamble with him — he cuts right to the core issues.

Women of the Word, None Like Him, In His Image (Jen Wilkin)

Short and meaty works from a no-nonsense Bible teacher. It’s like drinking a superfood smoothie.
