

Recommended Reads From Nate Bedson

The Brothers Karamazov (Fyodor Dostoevsky)

Brilliant. Absolutely brilliant with incredible redemptive and even gospel like undertones.

Dynamics of Spiritual Life: An Evangelical Theology of Renewal (Richard F. Lovelace)

I tend to be attracted towards books that are concerned with the health and vitality of the church. This work is complex yet incredibly encouraging. Looking forward to reading it yet again!

Edwards on the Christian Life (Dane C. Ortlund)

One of my all time favourite books. An overview of the theological and philosophical principles from the life and teachings of Jonathan Edwards.

Following the Master (Michael J. Wilkins)

Best work I have read on what true discipleship is and means. Changed my perspective immensely!

The Lord of the Rings (J.R.R. Tolkien)

Pure brilliance.

A Severe Mercy (Sheldon Vanauken)

Learning to lead from a place of overflow rather than deficit. Solid follow up of his book An Unhurried Life.

Spirit and Sacrament: An Invitation to Eucharistic Worship (Andrew Wilson)

Exceptional work on the current state of the evangelical church and the need for spirit filled liturgy. This book fueled my Doctrinal Statement on the Mission of the Church for seminary.

Spiritual Formation as of the Church Mattered (James C. Wilhoit)

A solid look into the role that community plays in spiritual formation.

An Unhurried Leader (Alan Falding)

Letters between C.S. Lewis and Sheldon, as well as Sheldon recalling his journey with faith. One of my all time favourite books!

Water from a Deep Well (Gerald L. Sittser)

Really compelling look at spiritual formation throughout church history.
